Critical Conversations: Are we teaching learners to think?

Susan Gross Forneris
PhD, RN, CNE, CHSE-A

Dr. Forneris is currently the Excelsior Deputy Director, Center for Innovation in Simulation and Technology, National League for Nursing, Washington, DC.

Dr. Forneris is actively engaged in initiating multi-site simulation research on simulation and debriefing and in the area of high stakes testing with the MN Consortium for Nursing Education and Research. She has several publications focused on the development and use of reflective teaching strategies.

EVENT OVERVIEW:

The WA Simulation in Healthcare Alliance, in collaboration with Laerdal Australia, is pleased to invite you to a morning with Dr Susan Forneris. In Australia for the SUN Meeting, Dr Forneris will present a short lecture on critical conversations, with an emphasis on conceptualizing learning as meaning making; the cognitive strategy for being critical; and engaging learners through curious, purposeful learning conversations. Dr Forneris will then facilitate a workshop on 'Teaching Thinking'.

WORKSHOP DETAILS:

Date – Monday 11th June 2018

Time – 0900-1230 (morning tea will be provided)

Venue – CTEC, The University of Western Australia

Cost - $15

Parking – paid parking is available opposite CTEC on Hackett Drive.
